

information issued on the map and can increase sales and profits.

In the embodiment, an inquiry to or an order from the store can directly be made from a user terminal to the store. The present invention is not limited to this. The inquiry or order 5 may also be made from the user terminal to a service center or via the service center. Further, the user data may also be sent from a move destination to the service center and from a terminal of a private house. In the embodiment, the store tried to distribute store data into the service center. Additionally,
10 a store information provider becomes a distributor of the store data and may also distribute the store data to the service center. In this case, the store information provider may also accept a user's inquiry and order and a liaison of charging information from the service center. The store can use the method of the 15 present invention for mail-order sales and online shopping.